

The Institute of Evolutionary Medicine, University of Zurich (UZH), (www.iem.uzh.ch) is a unique, globally connected institute of the UZH Medical Faculty. It offers a professional, friendly, highly interdisciplinary, and enthusiastic working environment. Access to state-of-the-art equipment, infrastructure and shared facilities ensures excellent working conditions.

The Institute of Evolutionary Medicine, University of Zurich, announces the following position:

Postdoc-Position (50-80%)

- Job description: Contribution to a vibrant research group (Clinical Evolutionary Medicine Group (www.iem.uzh.ch/en/people/clinicalevol.html)) and development of new/own project ideas
- Research areas: Evolutionary medicine, evolutionary epidemiology, translational research from evolutionary medicine to clinical applications, and related fields.
- Duration: This position is available immediately and open for one year, however prolongation is desired. Starting date and workload level are negotiable.
- Desired: A completed PhD or MD; designated research and publication experience, grant application experience; excellent English language knowledge (oral/written).
- Salary: University-funded position with competitive salary.

We are looking forward to receiving your application. Please email your personal records (integral PDF-file) including a short letter of motivation and a detailed CV (with publication list and reference addresses) to info@iem.uzh.ch.

Contact address for further information: Dr. Nicole Bender (nicole.bender@iem.uzh.ch).